

"There is equality between the straight line and the plane and between the plane and the volume: the consideration of space gives a new meaning and a new object to exhaustion—exhausting the potentialities of an any-space-whatever."

(Gilles Deleuze, "The Exhausted", Essays Critical and Clinical)

Project Space, Display 1 is the first joint exhibition by Tiny Domingos and Hans Kuiper. It marks the beginning of a process of rapprochement and cooperation between two artists with different life cycles and trends; Tiny Domingos (Lisbon / Berlin) and Hans Kuiper (Amsterdam / London).

Starting point and also the title of the exhibition--the second part is scheduled for September--is the concept of "project space". Our intention is to focus on the denotative meaning of these two words, with the idea of 'experimental exhibition space organized by artists' will be left aside. The term "project" is understood here as an 'architectural project', 'draft', 'work in progress' and 'projecting a vision or a movie'. We therefore want to install by a space which, like the spinal cord, will serve as the basis for our entropic considerations, idealize and transform the exhibition space.
